

SABRE FINAL GOLDEN PATH MOCKUP

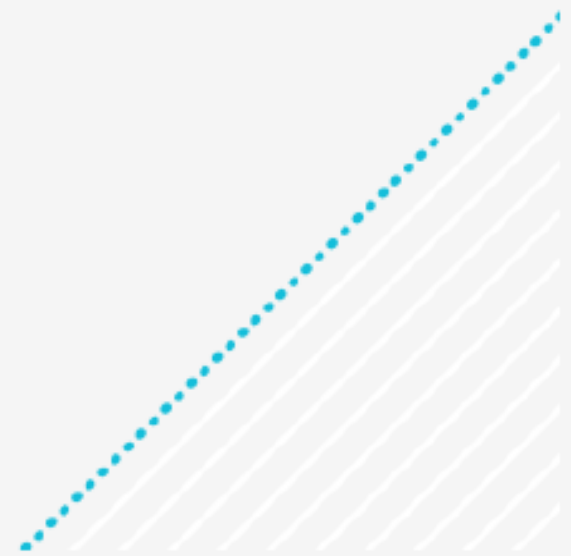

BRINGING NUMBERS TO LIFE

L21.1

This includes some secondary specifications
after the main scenario.

This best simulates the scenario sequences and animated transitions.

SABRE Travel Information Network Graphical Air

In 1995-1997, AM+A designed an innovative user interface for Graphical Air, the flagship air travel booking application used by professional travel agents, for the SABRE Travel Information Network. Using task analyses and user interviews, progressive prototyping techniques, and interactive guidelines documents, AM+A designed all aspects of the software including functionality, behavior, and appearance. The complexity and uniqueness of the product required the invention of many custom controls and behaviors.

This demonstration provides an animated step-through of some typical interactions.

Leisure Display
This is the default display of a leisure search. This search returns entire itineraries based on the lowest fares. The first itinerary is expanded by default and all other itineraries are collapsed with summaries displayed in their title bars. All itineraries can be expanded or collapsed with the push of a button. Subsequent screens show expanded itineraries and how an itinerary can be booked.																			1599.80	6	D10	20 Jun

Calendar Dialog (3 of 3)

This is the default appearance of the Calendar Dialog. The default date shown in the Date and Month Fields is the current date (represented in the Calendar by the yellow bevelled date) and the default time is 12 Noon for international flights and 8 AM for domestic flights. In cases where no routing has been selected the default time is blank because the system does not know if the routing is domestic or international.

Notice that any dates preceding the current date are flattened and greyed, which means they cannot be selected.

Selecting Dates and Times (3 of 6)

Here, the user has selected 14 March as the preferred date of travel. The user selects the preferred date of travel by clicking on that date in the Matrix Calendar, by clicking and scrolling down the dropdown list in the Date and Month Fields, or by typing the date and month directly into the Date and Month Fields. The user cannot enter dates which are invalid (i.e. February 31). If they do GA will default to the closest date in that month.

If the user is using keyboard navigation the drop-down lists will revert to the first item in the list. For example, if a user is navigating through the date drop-down list the highlight returns to 1 May after 31 May instead of going on to 1 June. This functionality differs from the Calendar which would shift the highlight from 31 May to June 1 using keyboard navigation.

Selecting Dates and Times (6 of 6)

The user can select the preferred time of travel by dragging the Time Indicator to the preferred time in the Calendar Timescale, by clicking and scrolling down the dropdown list in the Time Field, or by typing the time directly into the Time Field. If the Calendar dialog is blank the user can click on a time in the Timescale and a marker will appear at that time.

When the user click and holds in the Timescale any time will highlight upon mouse rollover. The user can only select hourly increments. If the user types in 12:30 PM GA will reset to 12 PM. If the user types a time without an AM or PM designator GA will default to AM.

Find Flight (1 of 1)

Find Flight is used to locate data for a single flight by entering its carrier and flight number. This can use the default date or whatever date the user has set. The Carrier Code and Flight Number are required. The result is displayed in the Viewer similarly to Flights search results, except only one flight appears.
